CALL FOR POSTERS

The Office for Science & Technology of the French Embassy together with MIT, Massachusetts Clean Energy Center and the French Alternative Energies and Atomic Energy Commission, partners of the French-American Innovation Day (FAID 2014) invites students, faculty members and company researchers to submit posters describing their recent research in the energy storage field. Research areas include batteries, fuel cells, ultra-capacitors, and other energy storage technologies. Posters may address any aspect of the field from basic materials and components research to systems, manufacturing, and reuse.

Posters will be presented at the French-American Innovation Day 2014 to be held at the MIT Media Lab on December, 8 and 9, 2014.

PRIZES

Conference attendees will vote on the student posters. The top three student's posters will receive prizes ($300, $150 and $50) generously offered by the Massachusetts Clean Energy Center, the organization dedicated to accelerating the success of clean energy technologies, companies and projects in Massachusetts. Participant must be present to win during poster session, 12:30 – 2:30 December 8, only STUDENT posters are eligible to win prizes.

Context: FAID is an annual Franco-American event which brings together scientists, companies, entrepreneurs, and investors. It is a high-level event in the Boston area where researchers and companies have the opportunity to exchange views on a specific technological issue, start co-operative activities and develop business transactions with a transatlantic perspective. The goal of the program is to facilitate the development of innovation ties between France and America.*
